Simplicity and Chic in Morning

PATTERN 9316

9316

It's as fresh as the morning d... And it was designed for all the clever women who like to put the smart appearance at the very beginning of every new day. Th... or four dresses made up by this pattern would solve all your house fr... problems. And the expense ... prove trifling. Moreover, this pattern has been designed so simply ... to follow it will seem like a first ... on in sewing. The yoke and sleeves all-in-one with a bit of bodice ... ness below, and the decorative pock... make this frock very smart indeed. Percale or gingham in gay plaids, small geometric designs would be effective. Add nobby cork or wood buttons.

Pattern 9316 may be ordered only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 4¼ yards 36-inch fabric.

SEND FIFTEEN CENTS in coin or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, STYLE NUMBER and SIZE.

Complete, Diagrammed Sew Chart Included.

Send your order to Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 232 West Fourteenth street, New York.

House Democrats Defy President—Lobbying for and Against Utilities Bill to Be Investigated—Senator Glass Bests Eccles.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

© Western Newspaper Union.

REVOLT in congress against administration leaders reached a climax when the house, by the decisive vote of 228 to 148, rejected the "death sentence" in the utility holding companies bill as passed by the senate and demanded by the President. The record vote came on a motion to substitute the house bill placing utility holding companies under regulation of the securities and exchange commission for the senate bill which provided the dissolution of the holding companies of more than first degree being in 1940.

The adoption of this motion killed the "death sentence." After substituting the house bill for the senate bill the perfected measure was passed by a vote of 322 to 81.

Senator Brewster

Now the bill will go to conference committee where it is certain to be lively. The first witness heard, Charles H. Gibson, was threatened with jail by Secretary of the Interior Ickes for removing official documents from the files. Mr. Gibson, who was government attorney for the islands until Ickes ousted him, had testified rather vaguely against the regime of Gov. Paul M. Pearson.

Gibson testified that Governor Pearson had exceeded his authority under the law, was unpopular with a large section of the population of the islands, and was not frank in his administration. To support his testimony Gibson introduced several letters which were the documents to which Ickes alluded.

GEN. HUGH JOHNSON assumed his new office of federal works relief administrator for New York city. "Hobbo," his ever present secretary, fended off the reporters for a day, but let them in then, and to them the general wailed:

"I hate this thing! It isn't helping anybody, anywhere. When the source of money is cut off we'll be right back where we started. It's disheartening to sit here, knowing that when the funds are gone, the jobs will be gone."

ATTORNEY GENERAL CUMMINGS announced that on July 29 a school would be opened by his department in Washington for the purpose of training state, county and city police in law enforcement theory and practice. A twelve weeks' course will be given to selected officers, the instruction being free.

REPUBLICAN senators were advised that former President Herbert Hoover will not be a candidate for the Republican nomination in the Presidential race of 1936.

Herbert Hoover

They were advised that Mr. Hoover would make the formal announcement some time this summer. He is staying out, it was said, because he intends to remain in private life and has planned his future career along that line. For his active criticisms of administration policies the reason given that, although he does not "choose to run," he thought the party needed some sort of direction if it was to be successful. It is expected that his political utterances will be clothed in less authority.

The informers, however, assured the senators that Mr. Hoover would get behind the party's candidate and enter the campaign for him, and that he thinks, with satisfaction growing, the Republican prospects are looking brighter day by day.

WORLD war veterans from both the Allied and the Central powers met officially in Paris and debated ways in which future wars may be averted. They denounced as enemies of their own countries those who would seek to foment a new war, and passed a resolution declaring: "The respect for treaties being the basis of international relations, this confidence can be durable only when international accords and the resulting obligations are mutually and sincerely respected."

The meeting was held under the auspices of Fidac. The American delegates included S. P. Gilbert, Wilmington; Julian W. Thomas, Salt Lake City; Bernhard Ragner, McKeesport, Pa., and Harold L. Smith, Centerville, Pa.

Sen. Glass

BURT. T. ANSELL, a young attorney whose father, Gen. S. T. Ansell, is suing Senator Huey Long for libel, was earned when Long intruded on his party at a Washington hotel and took a swing at the Kinafish. One of the senator's companions seized Ansell's arm and the young man says Long then ran away.

DAVID LLOYD GEORGE, whose New Deal program was not well received by the British government, has resumed active participation in politics, "reluctantly," but with expressed determination to "go on with it." The little Welsh veteran statesman addressed the national convention of the peace and reconstruction movement, and asserted the menace to peace and the economic confusion throughout the world are growing worse.

JAPAN'S beautiful inland sea was the scene of a terrible disaster that cost 101 lives. The steamer Midori Maru, crowded with holiday passengers, collided with a freighter in the foggy night and sank almost immediately. Rescue boats picked up 91 of the 106 passengers and 56 of the crew. All the victims were Japanese.

SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE WALLACE proclaimed the establishment of an AAA adjustment program for the 1935-'36 crop which will include benefit payments of amounts not yet disclosed. Representatives from 16 rye growing states met in Washington to discuss the program and outline plans for its operation.

Farmers from the principal wheat producing states met with AAA officials and gave their approval to a tentative flexible plan for the payment of benefits to wheat growers.

CAPT. ANTHONY EDEN, England's journeyman trouble shooter, electrified the British Isles by announcing that Great Britain had offered to give Haile Selassie, emperor of Abyssinia, a generous strip of British Somaliland to replace territory acquired by Italy, if the Italian government would promise not to wage war against the domain of Africa's "Conquering Lion of Judah."

Nothing doing, said Premier Mussolini, who has turned a deaf ear to all Britain's proposals of an Italo-Ethiopian compromise. He was reported as intending to go right ahead with his plan of a four-years' war to effect the complete pacification of the African empire. He insists that there must be more room in Africa for overpopulated Italy to expand.

Mussolini has threatened to "remember" the nations which have offered to furnish Abyssinia with arms, and they have withdrawn or modified their offers. The African emperor pleaded:

"If we are in the right and if civilized nations are unable to prevent this war, at least do not decry us the means of defending ourselves."

The British parliament was no better pleased with Eden's "offer" of land than was Italy, and the colonial secretary, son of former Prime Minister MacDonald, had a hard time explaining it.

Then Italy heard that the British government was considering a proposal to invite other nations to join in an economic blockade of Italy to check her aggression on Ethiopia. Rome was astonished by this report but didn't seem in the least alarmed. Neither were the Italians frightened when they learned officially that Ethiopia had asked the United States to study means of persuading Italy to respect the Kellogg pact outlawing war. The emperor himself made the appeal to W. Perry George, charge d'affaires at Addis Ababa.

ANDRE CITROEN, famous for years as "the Henry Ford of France" because he built most of that country's low cost motor cars, is dead. He probably he was happy to pass on, for his vast enterprises had collapsed and his once huge fortune was gone.

THE federal government began a new fiscal year with intentions of spending more money than in any previous year of peace. Mr. Roosevelt announced that he would spend $8,520,000,000, of which $4,582,000,000 will go for "recovery and relief." He expects the treasury to collect $3,901,000,000. No, it doesn't add up. The deficit for the new fiscal year will be $4,628,000,000, it is estimated.

The fiscal year just passed came to an end with the public debt at a new peace-time peak of $28,695,000,000, still some shy of the $31,000,000,000 the President estimated a year ago. To finance the new budget, he had counted in part upon the $500,000,000 extension of "nuisance" taxes just passed by congress, but not upon the tax-the-rich program which the New Dealers hope to jockey through some time in August. Estimates have it that this will net another $340,000,000.

The expenditures for the past year as the result of the $3,000,000,000 relief and for the employment of 3,500,000 idle workers. A general upswing in business would improve the revenue expected by the treasury. The President counted on $3,711,000,000 coming in during the 1935 fiscal year. Receipts proved to be $3,785,000,000.

THE week's peak in crime was reached when Detroit police found Howard Carter Dickinson, prominent New York attorney and nephew of Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes, lying dead in a ditch beside a lonely Rouge park road with a bullet through his head and another through his chest.

Dickinson, a law associate of Charles Evans Hughes, Jr., had been in Detroit on business of the $40,000,000 estate of the late William H. Yawkey. Apparently, he had driven to Rouge park while on a drinking party after business hours. His companions on the ride, who were William Schweitzer, Detroit underworld character, and three burlesque-show girls, all of whom he had picked up at his hotel in the motor city, fled the scene and were traced to Fort Wayne, Ind., where they were arrested.

After several days of grilling by police, the four confessed they had plotted the murder to rob Dickinson. Sweitzer admitted firing the shots. Their loot was $134.

DETERMINED that what goes up must stay up, Fred and Al Key, endurance fliers, broke the world's time record for keeping a plane aloft, landing after 653½ hours in the air at Meridian, Miss. They passed the unofficial endurance record of 647 hours, 28 minutes and 30 seconds set in 1930 by Dale Jackson and Forest O'Brien at St. Louis.

Uncommon Sense

Ambition

When Cardinal Wolsey charged his friend Cromwell—not Oliver—to fling away ambition, he was giving very bad advice.

The old gentleman, who had got "in bad" with Henry the Eighth was on his way out of the picture.

But it was the wrong kind of ambition which got him into trouble with the Big Boss.

The prelate's real ambition was to run the country and the king and everybody else.

And the king, being able to do his own thinking, preferred to conduct the affairs of the country as he saw fit.

Of course he went a little bit too far when he began killing off wives, but he still was a great man, and had it not been for his ambition, nobody would remember him for anything but one of the Henrys who had been on the throne of England for a while.

* * * * * * *

Keep your ambition working.

You still need it.

It is a stimulant to effort. It is a promoter of thought. It leads men to do more than they are expected to do.

No great man has been without it.

The necessity of it ought to be dwelt upon in the schools.

Young people ought to be urged to be somebody and do something out of the common run.

If all men and women were content to follow the old tracks, to do what ever is done in the same way that it had always been done, they would be about as progressive as a hill of ants, and about as useful.

You live here only once, as far as you know.

Make as long of a stay in it as you can, and do as much work as you can.

* * * * * * *

I don't mean just ordinary plodding sweat-producing work.

I mean new original work.

You can't cherish any ambition to be a king today. Those jobs are all arranged for in advance. The only way you could get one would be to buy some little South Sea island and pay the natives to make you a king.

But want to do something that hasn't been done before.

Whether it is in science or politics or missionary work doesn't matter.

Don't be satisfied with a little temporary success.

Try to get yourself a job that will give you influence, and use your influence for progress.

That is open to the objection that it entails a great deal of work, but one rarely hears of a healthy man hurting himself by work.

* * * * * * *

I have never known a successful man or woman who did not possess a high degree of will power.

If you can't be your own boss, you can't be anybody's boss.

Neither can you do anything important and useful.

And if you lack importance and usefulness you are not going to have a very easy time in the world.

Laziness is natural to most people. So is procrastination, which is the child of laziness.

No matter what your job is, you must learn to keep at it until you master it, or some other fellow is going to get far ahead of you in the race for independence and security in life.

Cultivate your will power.

Force yourself to stick to your work long after the demon of laziness whispers in your ear that you are tired and need a rest.

* * * * * * *

Don't worry about wearing yourself out.

Worry may do that. Work will not. Establish some objective, and try to maintain it.

Pick out something that is worth doing, and which is within the limits of possibility.

Without an ear for music, you can never be a musician.

Without an artist's eye you can never become a painter or a sculptor.

Without unusual physical strength and a good sound heart you can not become an athlete.

But there is something that you can do, and do well, if you have average common sense and the will to keep everlastingly at the task you have set yourself.

Find out what it is. Do not choose it because you think it may bring you popularity.

You'll get popularity if you succeed, and you won't need to look around for it.

* * * * * * *

When you undertake anything, keep at it, and carry it through.

If, when studying, you find yourself turning page after page of a book, following all the printed lines, and not noting anything that is there, there is something the matter with your will.

Keep that will at work. Train it to be your boss. By and by it will keep you at work, and then you can begin to think about doing great things.

But if the will isn't exercised, it will refuse to work, and you will go through life accomplishing about half as much as you might accomplish if you want to be successful human being.

There are too many of such people in the world now. Much too many.

Don't be one of them. Be your own boss as far as it is possible.

FEW UNABLE TO FIND THRILL IN UNCOVERED PAST

What type of heart could it be that would not beat just a little faster over the news that a Harvard expedition will delve into the wilderness of Sinai for the secrets of the Moon Goddess?

What type of mind could it be that did not get a thrill out of Richard Halliburton's experience in the tunnel through which Joab led David's army into the Jebusite city of Jerusalem 700 years before Christ trod its streets? Isn't there a thrill in contemplation of digging into the Mayan ruins in Mexico and Central America, or in uncovering the stone-written history of Rome?

It was in the wilderness of Sinai that the Hebrews, led out of Egypt by Moses, wandered 40 years working up the nerve to enter the Land of Canaan. It was on Mt. Sinai that Moses obtained the tablets bearing the Ten Commandments.

Jerusalem, a shrine to Jew and Gentile alike, a pawn in wars that reach back into the dimmest history, holds secrets most normal persons yearn to solve.

The Mayans had a civilization on this continent when our ancestors still were dodging the proverbial in Europe and dallying with the idea of political and religious freedom.

It was in Rome that Paul preached the new gospel, and where martyrs to it were burned in pitch to light the arena for gladiatorial combats in the Colosseum, which still stands.

Most of our thrills over expeditions of that type are vicarious. We don't go, we can't go; most of us wouldn't go if we could, but that doesn't prevent us from believing we would not vent us from enjoying the fortunate few who do go.—Kansas City Star.

NO OCCASION TO BE ALARMED BY FEARSOME NAMES

If you are one of those nervous folks who get upset and frightened when the family doctor spiels off some of those jaw-breaking names, just make yourself familiar with the technical terms for some of the more ordinary aches and pains. Many times the old saw—the bark is worse than the bite—is true enough. For instance, if the doctor said the baby was affected by "advanced ectengia resulting in inchrimation" it would only mean that a severe earache was making the child cry. Just for fun memorize the following medical terms and spring them on your friends:

An earache is otalgia; backache, notalgia (do not confuse with nostalgia, meaning homesickness); headache, cephalgia; toothache, odontalgia; rheumtism, costalgia; and thigh-pains, meralgia. Any painkiller" is an analgesic. Also, smallpox is variola; chickenpox, varicella; whooping cough, pertussis; and measles, morbilli. Near-sightedness is myopia; far-sightedness, presbycpia; crossed eyes, a strabismus, while total blindness is amaurosis.

If you blister, it is vesication, and if you have difficulty in speaking or swallowing, it is dysphonia or dysphagia, as the case may be. Anorexia means that you suffer from loss of appetite; a cacoethic condition designates merely a bad disposition, or a vulgus signifies knock-knees. Anyone who drinks milk is galactophagus. A fat person is adipose, but puffiness denotes tumefaction. A condition of laziness or relaxation is nothing to be alarmed about. It is only atony.—Pathfinder Magazine.
